

Achieving higher levels of academic success with Rosetta Stone® English

In the US, the K–12 student population is changing, and so too are its needs. Emergent bilingual students, or English language learners, currently represent 10% of all students in public schools, and by 2025 they'll represent 25%.^{1,2} These students need new and better ways to advance their English language proficiency while also achieving academic success.

Rosetta Stone English can help. An adaptive blended learning program for grades K–6, it supports students' English language development through academic conversations.

- Integrates three key areas: speaking, listening, and grammar
- Provides personalized speaking instruction, practice, and feedback
- Promotes academic conversations in subjects such as math, science, social studies, general knowledge, and biographies
- Allows students to work independently and progress at their own pace
- Incorporates cultural responsiveness to honor learners' diversity

Students receive more personalized speaking instruction, practice, and feedback with Rosetta Stone English.
