

Literacy for All

Meeting the requirements of Idaho Code section 33-18114(4) with LETRS as a dyslexia professional development provider

Idaho educators want the best for their students, and that means providing them with rich literacy instruction that is scientifically proven and evidence-based. Idaho educators have used the science of reading to build a plan of action that will ensure access to effective and equitable literacy curriculum and instruction for ALL students. At Lexia®, we are here to partner with Idaho school districts to support students with dyslexia and increase student reading achievement. We want to level the literacy playing field for all students in every community. The following table outlines how Lexia’s professional learning suite, LETRS® (Language Essentials for Teachers of Reading and Spelling), and our pre-K–5th grade adaptive blended learning solution, Lexia® Core5® Reading, support Idaho’s educators and students.

Idaho’s Literacy Plan of Action

Idaho’s call to action	How Lexia answers the call
Align with the Idaho comprehensive literacy plan		Empowering literacy educators’ instructional practices with science of reading-based essentials
Identify science of reading-based reading programs		A science of reading-based framework supports foundational through advanced literacy skills development for ALL learners
Provide professional development and coaching aligned with the state dyslexia handbook		A dynamic blended professional learning suite that includes print, online, and in-person training and materials
Use a comprehensive assessment system to integrate meaningful literacy data into instruction and intervention practices		Real-time data-driven reporting, initial screening and ongoing differentiation, progress monitoring, data-driven instruction, and scripted lessons and resources provided in myLexia®
Use state funding to support professional development and implementation		How does LETRS meet ID funding criteria? Learn more here.
Use federal grant dollars to support Idaho’s early literacy initiatives

All for Literacy

lexialearning.com